Update

Dear Parents/Carers,

We loved every moment of our food-themed World Book Day yesterday, and the school was absolutely buzzing. From bouncing bananas to larger-than-life chefs, the imagination and enthusiasm across the whole community made the day feel truly special. Thank you so much to everyone who dressed up, supported from home, or helped bring the theme to life.

Children and staff embraced the theme brilliantly, filling classrooms and corridors with food-inspired book characters.

Our whole-school recipe book is attached to this week's newsletter—an amazing collection created by our staff and families. The library is now home to hundreds of book-character spoons, each one adding a burst of personality and joy to the shelves. Prizes for standout costumes and spoon characters will be awarded later today.

We are also delighted to share that Mrs Murphy returns from maternity leave today. We're so excited to have her back in school and know the children will be thrilled to see her.

Have a great weekend!

Many thanks

Mrs Helen Hadley

Key Information about Parents' Evenings

Over the next two weeks, we will be welcoming you into school to take part in parents' evening sessions.

This year, when you come into school, you will go into the hall where all the children's books will be laid out in classes. We will have some 'Celebration of Learning' strips ready for you to write out and secretly stick in your children's books when you see some work that impresses you! Your child will love looking for their secret strips the next day!

Class teachers will then meet you in their classrooms and will discuss learning, friendships and next steps. They will give everyone a questionnaire to complete. Please do this in the hall and put your completed questionnaires in the box for me (Mrs Hadley) to review.

On both nights, Mrs Murphy will be holding SEND appointments in the library and I will be having attendance meetings in my office. We look forward to chatting with you.

Tea and coffee will be available in the hall too.

Highlights of the week!

OWLETS

When we spoke to Owlets today, they said that they loved making banana splits yesterday. Mrs Tolley and Mrs Pritchard dressed up as a banana and a strawberry for World Book Day and decided to make snack time fit the theme!
Everyone has also enjoyed playing outside too!

HARES

When we spoke to Hares this morning, they were brilliant and they could talk about lots of their learning this week!! One child said he enjoyed all his learning, but especially phonics!
Other children talked about making tally charts in maths. And they all love their new vocabulary, Especially the word: bone-shaking!

SQUIRRELS

When I popped in to talk to Squirrels this morning, they said that they are enjoying their Science work on classification; they have loved their French lessons this week focusing on where in world people speak French; and also their whole class reading sessions.

FOXES

When I popped in to talk to Foxes this morning, they said enjoyed dressing up for World Book Day and sharing their spoons with each other. They also enjoyed a live lesson on Monday with Michael Rosen!!
Some children really enjoyed Mrs Andrew's volleyball lesson too.
